A maximum of 21 distance credits may be applied toward the J.D. No more than 6 credits applied toward the J.D. may come from 5000-level Law courses or graduate-level courses outside the College of Law unless earned pursuant to an approved concurrent degree program.

To qualify for the J.D., the candidate must have a UI grade-point average of 2.30 or better. The GPA required for good academic standing is 2.30.

Satisfaction of the Upper-Division Writing Requirement through Law Review, or a Directed Study, or particular designated courses each year

50 Hours of uncompensated law related pro bono service

Completion of the College's Professionalism in Legal Education Program

Total Hours 44

Courses to total 90 credits for this degree.

Students may choose to complete one of the following three emphases. To complete a J.D. with any of the listed emphases a student must complete the above general J.D. requirements and the requirements of one of the emphases.

A. Business Law Emphasis

In addition to the requirements for the J.D., students in the Business Law Emphasis must complete the following requirements:

Students pursuing this emphasis must earn a minimum grade of ‘C+’ in each course taken to satisfy Business Law Emphasis requirements, plus a cumulative 2.80 grade point average over all courses used to satisfy Business Law Emphasis requirements.

Students must complete an in-depth research paper that the student’s BLE Advisor agrees is relevant to the track chosen by the student and that satisfies the Upper Division Writing Requirement.
